Proud new parents, Danielle and Kevin Jonas, are giving a sneak peek inside their newborn daughter Alena's playroom — and it's gorgeous! Celebrity Baby Scoop has the exclusive details of the fun room, including images and a quick chat with the designer, Vanessa Antonelli.

"The playroom is so cool! My good friend Vanessa from NessaLee Baby designed it," Danielle told Celebrity Baby Scoop. "Our home is traditional, and with her nursery being a light purple, we wanted to do something different with the playroom, which is royal blue brown white and orange with multiple different textures."

As for the inspiration behind the custom-designed playroom, Antonelli says it was all about combining fashion with function.

"Functionally fashionable was the goal," the designer shares. "Kevin and Danielle have a modern sense of style that I infused into the space and made sure everything in it would take them for many years. It's glam, but not too girly in case there are more Jonas babies in their future."

It sounds like the new parents were very involved in the design process.

"Both Danielle and Kevin loved the idea of navy as opposed to traditional playroom colors or pinks," Antonelli shares. "They knew exactly what they wanted as far as functionality. It was important to have couch seating, play seating, book storage, toy storage, additional open space for future toys and a changing table to use now."

In terms of favorite elements of the room, Vanessa says it's all about the details.

"I love the little details about this room," she says. "The tiny pom poms on the drapes are just darling! The bird wallpaper and textured bark wallpaper tie back to the tree bookcase and the room's subtle theme. The way the navy overlays on the closet doors blend so well with the changing table's style completes the look. Plus, who can resist a teeny tiny ghost chair?"
